Methodist Episcopal Parsonage
35 E. Gordon
Bel Air
public

This Victorian house with projecting front bays was probably the third parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the first being on Churchville Road and the second on the church lot. This house has an intriguing arrangement of columns and lath for front porch posts. They are possibly not original, but they give an Eastlake flavor to the facade. Also worthy of note are the west porch in the second story with its thick but handsome turned posts and the scroll bracket on the east side of the front bays at the roof line. The hall staircase has step to ceiling dowels rather than the more common balustrade. That and the front porch posts may be a turn of the century addition additions possibly copying Eastlake elements from the Richardson house at the corner of Gordon and Hickory.

The building now houses school board offices.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two and a half story three bay clapboard house is at 35 E. Gordon Street in the Town of Bel Air, Harford County, Maryland. It presents its gable end to the street; the rolled tin roof seems in good repair. A pair of 1/1 double-hung sash windows decorate the gable. The rest of the windows are 2/2 except for the front ones in the first story which are 2/4. The front windows have louvered wooden shutters. The back building is wider than the front portion which must have been the parlor. A carved bracket decorates the join in the walls on the east side. There are two entrances to the side of the projecting parlor. The east one is now the entrance and is enclosed. It has a single pane transom over a single pane over two panel narrow door. The west door must have been the main entrance. It has a two pane transom over an oak door with two round headed panels over 2 square panels. It is now blocked because the hall has been turned into an office.

The front porch has a hipped roof supported on novelty posts composed of two square boards with stick style cross members; the porch surrounds the first story of the projecting double bay portion. A second story west side porch is tucked in over the front hall. It has a fat turned post and a pair of them engaged on the walls. Scrolled decoration runs along under the spandrel of this gracefully curving shed roof. To the south of the porch over hall is a two story hexagonal bay window with carved brackets supporting the cornice at the top. There is no demarcation between the first and second story.

The rear (south) elevation shows a two bay, two story kitchen addition with a flat roof. Behind that is a porch screened with latticed laths. Facing that at the west end is a shiplap room with a roof slanting down to the west. It has a 4 pane casement window. It was probably a bathroom, the early 20th century solution to the problem of providing indoor plumbing being to graft a room on wherever it was easiest.

It appears that few fundamental changes have been made indoors. The parlor (the ground floor room in the north projection) has a painted slate mantel against the south wall. It has a square opening, and plain colonettes and frieze shallowly incised on it. On the west side behind (south of) the parlor is a small chamber lighted by the bay window. It seems small for a dining room and has no mantel. East of that is now the entrance hall containing the staircase, a closed string, dog-leg run with square floor to ceiling posts downstairs and square balusters. The posts may be a 20th century alteration replacing an enclosure. The office behind the hall probably was the kitchen. Upstairs are 3 bedrooms and a bath.

The woodwork throughout is entirely plain.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This attractive Victorian house was built around 1883 to be the Methodist Episcopal Parsonage on land given by Mrs. Elizabeth G. Lee (46/438). It remained in that use until 1945. The unification of the Methodist Episcopal and Methodist Protestant Churches into the Methodist Church (1939) led to the unification of the Main Street churches in 1943. In that year the minister of the First Methodist Church (the former M. E. Church) was assigned to serve both churches. This parsonage was sold in 1945 to its next door neighbor, the Harford County Board of Education (288/52). Apparently the school board had no need of it at the time for it was sold to Anna Stump Williams in 1951 (363/270). She sold it to William Scott Hibbits in 1958 (502/410), and he sold it back to the Board of Education in 1963 (622/170). It houses offices today.
